

You're probably wondering:

"Who is this clown, and Why should I hire him?"

You shouldn't hire me because I:

can juggle and make balloon animals, solve a Rubik's cube, keep houseplants alive, play a little guitar, dj, and produce music, create art in nearly any medium, manage several businesses, teach multiple apprentices, maintain an aspiring non profit, host and sponsor a weekly 5k, cycle 50 miles and run a 5k in the same day, have read hundreds of books and retained most of that information, have many tattoos and tattoo professionally, 3D model and animate, can rebuild an engine, can fabricate fiberglass, am a horror movie connoisseur, am highly educated through college, 4 certifications, and self study, am extremely adaptable, refuse to quit, open about my thoughts and feelings, highly professional, articulate and effective communicator, have lived in over half the country, visited nearly all 50 states, lived poor, lived wealthy, lived country, lived city, can skate, bmx, and snowboard a halfpipe, was an Army medic and EMT, and can administer CPR, a tracheotomy, and treat a pneumothorax, teach you how to build and repair credit, repair electronics, write scratch code in multiple languages, survive in the woods with nothing but my wits, enjoy crossfit, and weightlifting, show you how to customize a proper diet for your individual needs, program lighting rigs for professional events, have a fantastic sense of humor, huge Katy Perry and Lonely Island fan, met Mix Master Mike from the Beastie Boys, can train K-9s, and leash train cats, tended a wolf rescue, do volunteer work when I can, feel responsible for my reality and everyone in it, write poetry and short stories, awarded a college scholarship at 14 for my art, can explain that a crystal oscillator is used to stabilize a clock signal on a motherboard, can hold a relevant conversation about psychology with a psychologist, believes that we will see the matrix come to pass, have an average of around 20% returns on my stock investments, about to purchase my first home, owned a 9ft burmese python as a child, have a 24 year old daughter, am a learn it all, owner of great confidence, have intrinsic security, not a favorites' kind of person, have a crazy amount of technical knowledge, can grasp complex concepts easily, self taught in mathematics, has a long term goal of a Phd but is still on the fence about the commitment, has a long nonlinear list of job titles from many areas, only celebrates Halloween, choose to live life on my terms.

I could go on to elaborate even more than that, I could also talk about my technical background but that is just going to sound like everyone else and I am not everyone else, so if you are interested in a particular type then I am probably not for you and your company. However, if you do value real diversity, I ultimately feel that you should hire me for 2 reasons and 2 alone:

My character, the caliber of who I am as a person and how I choose to live my life.

My ability to handle any task you give me.
